Dear Dalena Boelter

The Missouri Department of Revenue has notified this agency that you are not in compliance with section 324.010 RSMo, which requires the suspension of the professional license of individuals who have failed to file state tax returns and/or pay their state tax liabilities. You should have already received a letter from the Department of Revenue notifying you that you are not currently in compliance with Missouri state tax law. If you did not receive the Department of Revenue's letter, call the Department of Revenue immediately at (573) 751-7200.

By law, your license may be subject to suspension on or about May 4, 2013, unless you resolve this issue with the Department of Revenue. You can reach the Department of Revenue at (573)751-7200.

Again, unless you resolve this issue with the Department of Revenue prior to May 4, 2013 your license could be suspended and the continued practice of your profession will be subject to criminal and administrative penalties. If your license is suspended you will not be able to practice your profession again until after you receive a letter of compliance from the Department of Revenue and forward a copy of it to the Board. This agency cannot intervene with the Department of Revenue on your behalf. You must resolve your tax issues directly with the Department of Revenue at (573)751-7200.

Sincerely yours,

Brian Barnett
Executive Director

Re: Suspension of License #014659

Dear Dr. Brown,

The Missouri Department of Revenue has notified this agency that despite notices of imminent suspension you are still not in compliance with section 324.010 RSMo., which requires the suspension of the professional license of individuals who have failed to file state tax returns and/or pay their state tax liabilities.

By law, your license was suspended on May 4, 2013.

The continued practice of your profession with a suspended license subjects you to criminal and administrative penalties. You must not practice your profession until after you receive a letter of compliance from the Department of Revenue and complete our reinstatement requirements. You must return your license to this office within ten days of the date this letter was mailed.

The first step to reinstate your license is to obtain a letter of tax compliance from the Department of Revenue. You can reach the Department of Revenue at (573)751-7200.

It is important to understand that the Missouri Dental Board has not been involved in this suspension process other than to send you notice that the Department of Revenue was going to suspend your license if you did not get into compliance with them. This agency cannot intervene with the Department of Revenue on your behalf. You must resolve your tax issues directly with the Department of Revenue.

Sincerely yours,
